Processing times in Paris

Processing times can vary considerably depending on the following main factors: your rapidity in providing us with the information or documents requested, the need to undergo additional medical examinations, various internal verification procedures, postal delays and finally, the number of applications we have to process.

It is not necessary or useful to contact us to enquire about the status of your application. Such calls or letters add to our work load and cause delays in the processing of all applications, including yours; however, you may write to us if you have new information to give us (especially in the case of a change of address, marital status or family composition).

Finally we advise you against trying to contact us by telephone as our files are confidential and their content cannot be discussed over the phone. In case of an emergency, you may leave a message on our voice message system by dialling: (33-1) 44.43.29.16.

Appendix C

Medical Instructions

A medical exam is obligatory for yourself, your spouse or common-law partner and your dependent children, even if they are not accompanying you to Canada. If you are a divorced or separated parent, a minor child of whom you have joint or sole custody is considered your dependent child, even if he or she usually lives with the other parent and is not accompanying you to Canada.

Canadian immigration law defines as inadmissible to Canada a person who is suffering from any disease, disorder, disability or other health impairment as a result of the nature, severity or probable duration of which, in the opinion of a medical officer concurred with by at least one other medical officer, they are or are likely to be a danger to public health or to public safety, or their admission would cause or might reasonably be expected to cause excessive demands on health or social services. If your family member is inadmissible, you will also be inadmissible.

You will receive the forms and instructions for the medical exam, as well as the list of designated doctors in your country of residence, when a positive selection decision is made. It is up to you to make an appointment with the designated doctor of your choice. You are also responsible for paying all the fees for the exam.

The permanent resident visa has the same validity as the medical results, that is, 12 months from the date of the first exam or test.
